We certainly are living in uncertain times! For over a year we have struggled with a pandemic, the real threat of serious illness to ourselves and those we love, economic pressures, racial tensions, isolation, separation, and the disruption of our normal lives. It is no wonder that we experience fear and anxiety. Beginning April 8, we will be offering a five-session DVD study: “Unafraid: Living with Courage and Hope in Uncertain Times.” Adam Hamilton explores very common worries and fears such as crime, loneliness, change, finances, aging, and illness. In short video segments he presents an informed and inspiring message full of practical solutions on how our faith can support us during these challenging times. The class will focus on discussion rather than lecture regarding how these insights and solutions can be applied in our daily lives.

Who? Everyone is invited. The sessions will be led by Chuck and Jan Wormington, and Russ Hensel
